Act II, Scene 4 (BGIMO) — Fifteen years later

You're worried about your mother. Her MS has been getting steadily worse, and she had to quit her job this year. Charles has been helping out a little, but it's hard on him. Between her portion of your father's inheritance and the little she gets from the government, she's getting by, but she's not doing well. She needs more help than she's getting. You need to help out more, but you have a full time job and two young children to care for. You just can't spare much time.

You and Zach are doing all right financially. Maybe you could hire someone to come in and help out a few days a week. It isn't much, but it might make the difference. On the other hand, things are only going to get worse. Maybe you should pool your savings and get your mother into assisted living while she can still make the move.

On yet another side, you remember what it was like watching your grandmother dying in a nursing home. She was so angry, being cared for by strangers. No matter how often you and your mother visited, she always felt alone. That sort of care should really be provided by someone the patient knows and loves. Maybe you could buy a larger house and move her in with you. Would Zach put up with that? What would that do to Jessica and Michael, living around your ailing mother for years, watching her die?

You just don't know what to do. You know you need to help out, but you feel so lost.
